

JUROR'S WIFE ILL COURT ADJOURNED UNTIL AFTERNOON

It is the General Opinion That if Thaw
Were Being Tried in California
He Now Has a Conplete Case.

RUMORS OF EVELYN'S SUICIDE AND MURDER

Prove to be Without the Slightest Foundation-- Fears are Entertained of a Mistrial--Distinguished Visitors Were Present When Court Opened.

New York, Feb. 13.—The possibility of a mistrial in the case of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White cropped up this morning. Even in event this does not take place it is probable that the case will be late in starting.

The wife of one of the jurors— which one cannot be learned—was stricken with pneumonia during the night. This juror, together with two other members of the panel, has left the criminal courts building in a carriage and accompanied by two court officers to go to his wife's bedside. It is not known at this time how serious the woman's condition is, or whether it will be possible for the juror to return to court. In event of the serious illness of the juror's wife or her death, it is probable that the panel will be dismissed and the session be declared a mistrial.

The court room filled slowly this morning. Intricacies of expert testimony had dampened the ardor of sensation seekers. Then the illness of the wife of Joseph B. Bolton, juror No. 11, was early rumored in the corridors and the crowds lingered outside to discuss the possibility of an adjournment for the day.

It was announced that Bolton had gone to his home in the Bronx, accompanied by two other jurors and two court officers.

Distinguished visitors present for the first time were former Attorney General Hampton L. Carson, of Pennsylvania and Congressman J. Warren Kiefer, of Springfield, O., former speaker of the United States House of Representatives.

COURT ADJOURNED TILL 2 P.M.

Delmas, Gleason and the other Thaw counsel entered at 10:30 with their usual hundred pound load of law books, notes and memoranda. Delmas' law partner, Henry Cloy McPike, who looks like a cross between Senator Clark and Vice President Fairbanks, started to open a pile of letters. Some say McPike is the brains of the defense. So far he has had the thinking part. His manner is that of a captain of industry doing business in his private office. The ordinary distractions of the court room do not bother him.

At 10:45 o'clock District Attorney Jerome came, without his assistants, and whispered to those who gathered about him that there would be a recess until 2 o'clock to enable Juror Bolton to get back from his wife's sick bed. A moment later Judge Fitzgerald took his seat and when court had been called to order Jerome made the same announcement. The judge at once announced a recess until 2 o'clock. By 10:50 o'clock the court room was empty.

EVELYN VISITS HUSBAND.

Upon the announcement of the recess by Judge Fitzgerald, Mrs. Evelyn Thaw, accompanied by her friend May McKenzie, hastened over to the Tombs for a visit with her husband. The jury, or those members remaining, were taken back to their quarters at the hotel.

In reply to an inquiry at noon today, Assistant District Attorney Garvan said that according to the information received at the prosecutor's office, Mrs. Bolton is suffering from double pneumonia and is in a very precarious condition.

EVELYN'S SUICIDE RUMORED.

New York, Feb. 13.—Mrs. Harry K. Thaw had the disagreeable experience today of being awakened by an inquiry shouted through her door a hotel clerk at the Lorraine, seeking to learn if she was dead.

A rumor emanating from Pittsburgh this morning that she had committed suicide was followed into the New York newspaper offices a few moments later by another that she had been shot by a half-brother of her husband.

Police headquarters were informed and plain clothes men were rushed to investigate at the hotel. Not satisfied with the answers received at the desk the officers forced a clerk to go to the Thaw apartments and make inquiry.

Young Mrs. Thaw assured the clerk upon her word, that she was not dead.

IN CALIFORNIA

It is Believed That the Defense Could Rest Its Case and Be Confident of Acquittal.

New York, Feb. 13.—It is believed with good reason that were Thaw were being tried in California or South Carolina, the defense could now rest and safely anticipate a verdict of acquittal. While Jerome's tactics of Monday and yesterday have checkmated the defense at many points, he has not overthrown the single great achievement of Delmas—the giving to the jury a good strong human motive for letting Thaw go.

But in the state of New York a good strong human motive is not sufficient. Since Aaron Burr shot Alexander Hamilton in a duel the courts have frowned so heavily upon private killings that no New York jury would dare acquit on the ground of justification.

Delmas has proved justification, but being here and not in San Francisco he has turned around and proved something else.

It is in this conflict of proof that lies the present problem of the defense.

PHYSICIANS INTERESTED.

Delmas must never forget to keep before the jury the alleged motive of justification (which is a motive outside the law) while at the same time he must prove insanity or self defense or both (which are reasons inside the law).

Physicians of the highest standing in New York are giving earnest attention to the expert testimony which will show Thaw's degree of responsibility when he killed White. They deny the idea that experts merely testify for hire. All brain specialists are sharply divided as to where the boundary between sanity and insanity should be placed. For years, it is pointed out, doctors have testified that suicide or self murderers were out of their minds, as to enable coroners' juries to bring in the usual humane verdict of "suicide while temporarily insane."

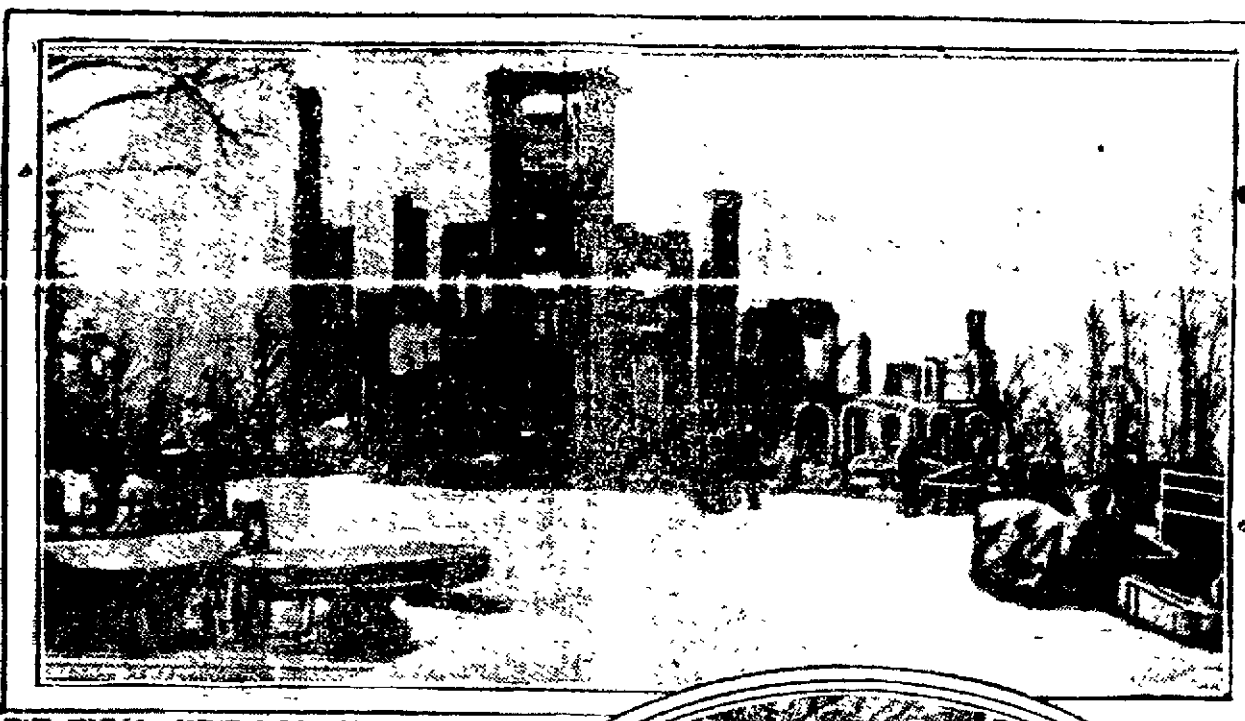

It is declared that medical opinion will more and more lean to the belief that the same excuse should extend to those who kill others under terrible mental stress.

GAMBLER AWAY $200,000.

New York, Feb. 13.—Harry K. Thaw, in the five years preceding the slaying of Stanford White, lost at least $250,000, playing bridge whist and poker in two clubs in this city, according to a report current today.

HUNDREDS VISIT RUINS OF WANNAMAKER HOME.

THE RUINS OF LINDBENHURST

Jenkinstown, Pa., Feb. 13.—Hundreds of sightseers made the journey from Philadelphia Sunday to inspect the ruins of Lindenhurst, the magnificent country home of John Wannamaker, near here, which was destroyed by fire last Friday night. The crowds finally became so large that in order to protect the valuable property rescued from the mansion and remaining strewn about the lawn the guards were forced to map patrol lines surrounding the grounds.

Rough estimates of the actual loss sustained are about one and a half million dollars, but this represents arbitrary valuations on many art treasures and curiosities that were priceless and whose destruction cannot be covered by mere figures. An inventory is being rushed, Mr. Wannamaker being desirous of learning the exact extent to which his collections, galleries, library and furnishings have been reduced.

During the fire quantities of objects of all kinds were rescued by attendants, firemen and neighbors. These were left for hours at the mercy of vandals and "souvenir" seekers. Some of the losses believed to have been caused by the pilfering of spectators were "souvenirs" valued at thousands of dollars and include lace, rare books, autographs, rugs and pictures cut from frames.

Those in charge of the ruins have received a number of inquiries from persons who are interested in the fate of famous paintings in the Wannamaker collection. At present it is impossible to determine the details in regard to these losses. Paintings that hung in the hallways, including portraits by Van Dyck and Bassano and landscapes by Constable, Lorraine and Corot, are believed to have been destroyed, with but few exceptions. Efforts of the rescuers were chiefly directed toward saving the club, where Thaw suffered most of his losses, is authority for the statement. Thaw, this man asserts, played whist at the club on an average of three nights a week, the sittings lasting from two to five hours a night.

John W. Gates and Chas. M. Schwab were often his companions in the game. When Thaw played the stakes were seldom less than $1 a point making it possible for him to lose $1,500 easily on an "unlucky" night, and Thaw was generally unlucky.

Thaw never complained of losses, however.

SERIOUS CLASH BETWEEN COUNSEL

THE FEATURE OF TUESDAY'S SESSION OF THE THAW MURDER TRIAL.

Jerome Indignantly Accused Delmas of Implied Suggestions to the Jury.

New York, Feb. 13.—Dr. Britton Evans, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane at Morris Plains, N. J., was a witness for the defense in the Thaw case. He testified that he was of the opinion that Harry Thaw was insane at the time of the tragedy. He had been called upon to answer a long hypothetical question in which reference had been made to "a serious if not a capital operation" upon Miss Nesbit, when a storm broke between the counsel.

Attorney Delphin Delmas took exceptions to certain statements of District Attorney Jerome, and had inserted in the record of the case a protest against "the misconduct of the learned district attorney." Mr. Jerome hotly accused the defendant's counsel of trying to instill into the minds of the jury the implied suggestion that the operation performed upon Evelyn Nesbit in 1903, before Thaw took her to Europe, was "of a criminal nature," when, "as a matter of fact," he said, "it was for appendicitis."

Justice Fitzgerald did not rule out any of the district attorney's remarks before the jury, and Mr. Delmas took care to have every exception he made "seriously noted." Mr. Jerome won his point and the words "serious if not capital," as defining the operation, were withdrawn by Attorney Delmas. During the tilt Mr. Delmas inquired (Continued on page 5.)

works in the gallery proper. The greater part of this collection is intact. Munkacz's "Christ Before Pilate" was carried out unharmed.

Mr. Wannamaker has particularly lamented the almost total destruction of his fine library, the fire having wiped out the most valuable part of it. Americans, containing autograph copies and first editions and representing the accumulation of a lifetime; rare works on Martin Luther, which were to form the material for a book by their possessor; manuscripts by famous authors and a Reformation Bible worth $1,000 were among the losses.

LINCOLN WOULD NOT KNOW THE REPUBLICAN PARTY

Were He to Come Back to Earth today, Says Former Governor Campbell--Speeches by Gen. Sherwood and Campbell at Kenton, Ohio, Banquet.

Kenton, Feb. 13.—The Hardin County Democratic club held its second annual Lincoln day banquet last evening, at which the chief speakers were ex-Governor James E. Campbell, Congressman Isaac R. Sherwood of Toledo, and Samuel H. Hoskins of Wapakoneta.

General Sherwood was introduced as the next governor of Ohio, but he declared that he could not be a gubernatorial candidate on account of the debt of service he owed to the Democrats and Republicans that sent him to Congress from his district.

During the course of his remarks, Mr. Sherwood favored the abolishment of the United States Senate and urged the passage of a law that would compel the speaker of the House of Representatives to recognize a representative on the floor of Congress.

Mr. Campbell spoke on the subject "What Would Be Lincoln's Policy? Were He Among Us Today?" "If Lincoln came back into politics today, he would not recognize the Republic,"

SUGGESTION MADE TO BAR COOLIES IN PENDING BILL

Washington, Feb. 13.—President Roosevelt, it is stated, has through Secretary Root proposed to Speaker Cannon and to the chairman of the senate and house committees on immigration and other Republican leaders in congress, that a clause be inserted in the immigration bill now pending in congress, which will bar Japanese coolie labor from the United States.

Major Schmitt and the San Francisco delegation favors such a provision.

Murder and Suicide.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Leonard T. Brown, 36, a merchant, and Margaret Strawb, 26, were found dead in the rear of the former's store in this city. It was a case of murder and suicide.

DEATH LIST GROWS NEARLY 200 LOST IN OCEAN HORROR

The Collision Between Joy Line Steamer Larchmont and Schooner Knowlton Was One of the Greatest of Recent Maritime Tragedies.

EACH CAPTAIN LAYS BLAME ON THE OTHER

Fearful Scenes of Suffering, Noble Acts of Heroism
And Craven Acts of Cowardice are Incidents of the Awful Affair.

The lost craft—Joy line steamer, Larchmont (Providence to New York) and three masted schooner, Harry K. Knowlton (South Amboy to Boston).

Passengers on Larchmont—200 (estimated).

Crew of Larchmont—30.

Crew of Knowlton—7, all saved.

Total number wrecked—187 (estimated).

Number saved—19.

Number drowned or frozen to death—181 (estimated).

Number bodies recovered—40.

Missing and undoubtedly dead—128 (estimated).

Survivors reached land in five boats and on four rafts from Larchmont, and in one boat from Knowlton. Two picked up afloat on wreckage from Larchmont. Eleven of those in boats which reached Block Island froze before arriving ashore. Captain Geo. McVey of Larchmont shifted straight for Larchmont, allowing no time to avoid collision.

Captain Frank Haley of Knowlton, says Larchmont unexpectedly tried to cross his bows, giving him no time to change Knowlton's course.

FEARFUL PANIC ON STEAMER.
According to the few survivors, the panic following the collision was indescribable. The bursting of the steam pipes filled the main saloon with great clouds of vapor and in the height of the confusion the cry of "fire" was raised. Men, women and children joined in a mad scramble for the decks and scores of the weaker ones went down and were trampled on. It is said that if the hull of the Larchmont is raised it will be found a veritable tomb as many of the victims of the disaster never gained the deck.

All hope of finding any other survivors of the disaster has been abandoned. Throughout the day tug boats and fishing craft have scoured the sea in the hope of picking up additional wreckage, rafts or life boats bearing living human freight, returning one by one, all reporting sighting only corpses.

BODIES ENCASED IN ICE.
Owing to the fact that many of the bodies are encased in ice a foot thick the rescue boats are having considerable difficulty in distinguishing them from the floating ice. The work of the life savers and volunteer rescuers has been most heroic and scores of these brave men are suffering terribly from the hardships they have undergone.

EACH CAPTAIN BLAMES THE OTHER.

Providence, Feb. 13.—Ugly rumors of cowardice and brutality on the part of members of the Joy line steamer Larchmont are afloat today. Each captain blames the other for the collision. Captain Haley of the schooner Harry Knowlton, is accused of thinking more of saving his vessel, which was beached than of lending aid to the sinking steamer. Captain McVey of the steamer says that his was the last boat to leave the vessel. Seafaring men point significantly to the fact that he left in the largest boat, which was only partially filled, while many other boats and life rafts were overcrowded.

The roll of the dead in the collision is growing. The number of those frozen and drowned is now placed at 181. Late reports from Block Island say that 20 have been saved from two crafts. Fifty-seven bodies so far have been recovered, confined in ice. None has been identified.

COUNTED FORTY FLOATING CORPSES.

To the north of Block Island the corpses float so thickly that the Joy liner, Kentucky, which put off from the island to look for possible survivors, counted 40 in less than an hour. So high were the seas that it was impossible to pick up any of the bodies. More than 100 of the Larchmont's passengers lived here. About 20 others are said to have been New Yorkers, taking advantage of a holiday for a voyage down the sound. The exact death list will never be obtained, as Purser Young of the Larchmont, did not save the passenger list, the only one in existence. All hope of finding any other survivors of the disaster is abandoned. The steamer Kentucky left Block Island at 11 o'clock for Providence, bearing 51 bodies and 19 survivors.

Labor Union Protests.
Waco, Tex., Feb. 12.—Mass meetings are being called by the labor councils, embodying all labor unions in the various cities of this state, to protest against the imprisonment of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, who have been in prison a year in Idaho.

The three men were officers of the Western Federation of Miners, and are charged with the murder of former Governor Steunenberg of Idaho a little over a year ago. Union men here allege that these men are being illegally restrained of their liberty, and that a conspiracy exists to keep them from having a trial.

To Read the Thaw Testimony.
Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 13.—When the senate met, Senator Hayman moved that the reading of the official journal be dispensed with because of the desire of many senators to read the latest developments in the Thaw case. The motion was adopted without dissent.

RIGHT TO APPEAL CRIMINAL CASES

Washington, Feb. 13.—The senate occupied the session in argument on the bill granting the government the right to take an appeal on points of law in criminal cases. The opposition came mainly from Senators Rayner and Whyte of Maryland and Heyburn of Idaho. While elaborate defenses of the proposition were made by Senators Patterson, Knox, Nelson and Spooner, no action was taken on the measure.

In Freight Collision.
Columbia, S. C., Feb. 13.—An unknown white man and Sever Devan, a negro fireman, were killed, and three trainmen were injured in a rear-end collision between two extra freight trains on the Southern railway, near Johnston, this state.

Tired Nervous Women Make Unhappy Homes

MRS. NELLIE MAKHAM

MRS. GEO. A. JAMES

A nervous irritable woman, often on the verge of hysterics, is a source of misery to everyone who comes under her influence, and unhappy and miserable herself.

Such women not only drive husbands from home but are wholly unfit to govern children.

The ills of women set like a fire brand upon the nerves, consequently seven-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous dependency, the "blues", sleeplessness, and nervous irritability of women arise from some organic derangement.

Do you experience fits of depression with restless alternating with extreme irritability? Do you suffer from pains in the abdominal region, backache, bearing-down pains, nervous dyspepsia, sleeplessness, and almost continually cross and snappy? If so, your nerves are in a shattered condition and you are threatened with nervous prostration.

Proof is monumental that nothing in the world is better for nervous troubles of women than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Thousands and thousands of women can testify to this fact.

Mrs. Nellie Makham, of 151 Morgan St., Buffalo, N. Y., writes:—

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs and today holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases of any medicine the world has ever known, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the laboratory at Lynn, Mass., which testify to its wonderful value.

President Lincoln's One Brief Vacation

By WALTON WILLIAMS

Copyright, 1907, by American Press Association

A BRAHAM LINCOLN, whose life was never a model or dignity and convention, engaged in two affairs during his career which he always wanted to forget. Of his connection with these events he seemed to be heartily ashamed. One was almost a duel, and the other was a revolutionary act as a legislator.

Lincoln as a Whig served in the Illinois legislature of 1840-41. There was a bitter fight against the state banks, led by the Democrats. The state of affairs was such that the Democrats believed that an adjournment of the legislature sine die would kill the banks. The Whigs undertook to prevent this by absenting themselves and thus reducing the attendance below a quorum.

Lincoln and Joseph Gillespie, another Whig, were delegated to attend the sessions and call the yeas and nays. The sergeant at arms was sent out to gather in enough Whigs to make a quorum. Lincoln and Gillespie, with another Whig, then ran to a window of the church in which the legislature sat and jumped out.

Gillespie said after Lincoln's death, "I think Mr. Lincoln always regretted that he entered into that arrangement, as he deprecated everything that savored of the revolutionary."

But it was what Lincoln in a letter to his close friend Joshua F. Speed called his "duel with Shields" that caused him more regret than any other incident connected with his public life. This also was brought about indirectly because of Lincoln's attitude regarding state finances, though there was a more romantic side to it.

In 1842 Lincoln was engaged to Mary Todd, whose particular chum was Julia Jayne, afterward the wife of Lyman Trumbull. James Shields, a young Irishman, was the state auditor. He was said to be "inordinately vain" and to have set himself up as a great beau, though unfitted by nature for playing that part. Mary Todd and other Springfield belles seemed to take delight in ridiculing Shields for his social pretensions. Miss Todd had some talent as a sarcastic writer. There appeared in the Sangamon Journal, a Springfield newspaper, a series of articles, presumably humorous, in which Shields was made the butt of ridicule. The first article criticised him in a good natured way for his management of state finances. The succeeding articles held him up to public ridicule on account of his social ambitions. Lincoln wrote the first, and the two girls wrote the other articles, but when Shields demanded of the editor the name of the author Lincoln gallantly "stood for" all.

Shields demanded a retraction. Lincoln considered his letter offensive and requested him to withdraw the letter and state his case more mildly. This Shields refused to do. He challenged Lincoln to fight him. Lincoln had been strongly opposed to dueling, but under the circumstances he felt compelled to accept the challenge. As weapons he named cavalry broadswords of the largest size. A point in Missouri opposite the town of Alton was designated as less Shields in his later career proved that he was a brave and able man. In many respects his career was most remarkable. He volunteered his services in the Mexican war and was promoted rapidly. Both at Cerro Gordo and Chapultepec he was severely wounded. For his bravery at Cerro Gordo he was brevetted major general. President Polk then appointed him the first territorial governor of Oregon, but Illinois elected him to the United States senate in 1849, where he served a full term of six years. Then he removed to Minnesota, and when that territory became a state he was elected to the United States senate for the first short term of two years. Later General Shields settled at Carrollton, Mo., and served two terms in the state legislature. But for the third time he was sent to the United States senate, being appointed to serve out the unexpired term of Senator Lewis V. Boggs, who died early in 1870. Shields sat in the senate two months through that appointment. Then he went to Ottumwa, Ia., where he died less than three months after leaving the senate.

THE COMBATANTS MET, BROADSWORDS AND ALL.

During the civil war the challenger of Lincoln also proved his military spirit. He went to Washington in 1862 and was appointed by his old enemy a brigadier general. Shields had the distinction of defeating Stonewall Jackson at Winchester, Va., though he had received a wound in one leg the day before. Some months later Jackson defeated Shields at Port Republic.

Though, according to Mr. Herndon, the man whom Lincoln might have split open from top to bottom was "inordinately vain," his record as a United States senator from three states and as a leader of armies in two wars, with several honorable wounds, would seem to vindicate him and cause posterity to rejoice that Mr. Lincoln did not get a chance at him with that cavalry broadsword on the 22d of September, 1842.

When Lincoln Was Stern.

Charles Wiegand was major of a German regiment from New York and, being of an enterprising turn of mind, secured a personal interview with President Lincoln and importuned him for authority to raise a brigade of German troops. He was extremely optimistic and conceived the affair to be then already accomplished, but, after waiting a while for the desired presidential spontaneity, he pressed the matter and was discomfited by being turned down in this remorseless mode by the president: "I think this man called on me once or oftener, but I really know nothing as to his capacity or merit. If a brigade was promised him by the war department, I know nothing of it, and not knowing whether he is fit for any place I could not with propriety recommend him for any." He treated with equal superciliousness one F. L. Capen, who engrossed some of his attention in an endeavor to establish a belief that the state of the weather could be predicted. The president was bored and cut Capen's career short by this matter of fact indorsement on his letter: "April 25, 1863. It seems to me Mr. Capen knows nothing about the weather in advance. He told me three days ago that it would not rain again till the 30th of April or 1st of May. It is raining now and has been for ten hours. I cannot spare any more of my time to Mr. Capen."

Raw Potatoes as "Fruit."

John Hay, assistant secretary to President Lincoln, is authority for the statement that Mr. Lincoln "ate his meals mechanically," never seeming to take much interest in eating. That the great president was not brought up as an epicure is indicated by an account of a visit to the home of Thomas Lincoln, his father, by an old lady of Indiana. This woman said that when she, with other visitors, was seated in the Lincoln cabin a plate was passed around containing raw potatoes, neatly peeled. Not having been accustomed to eating this kind of "fruit," she waited for the others to give her a cue. They proceeded to eat the potatoes as one eats apples, biting out mouthfuls.

LINCOLN RAN TO A WINDOW AND JUMPED OUT.

the place. The two prospective combatants and their friends accordingly met there, broadswords and all, but at the eleventh hour some mutual friends intervened, and the affair was settled with honor and without actual fighting.

It appears that the friends of Shields boasted mightily of his fighting prowess and his ferocity. Lincoln said to William H. Herndon, his law partner, afterward: "I did not intend to hurt Shields unless I did so in self defense. If it had been necessary I could have split him from the crown of his head to the end of his backbone." Considering the length of the Lincoln arm as compared to that of Shields, who was built otherwise, this does not seem to have been a vain boast.

This "duel" kept popping up for many years afterward. In 1858 Lincoln said to Herndon, "If all the good things I have ever done are remembered as long and well as my scrape with Shields it is plain I shall not soon be forgotten."

Mr. Herndon speaks of Shields with considerable disparagement. Neverthe-

RAILROAD JACK.

In "Railroad Jack" there is a breeziness and freshness about nearly its every movement that is redolent of the unconfined American region where the story is laid. Altogether there is a charm about it. With its mingled fun and tragedy, its oddity and its pathos, its pretty little traits of nature, of native life, its hits and reflections of every day American character that ought to spell continued success. "Railroad Jack" will appear at the Auditorium Wednesday matinee and evening.

GIRL OF THE GOLDEN WEST.

On Tuesday evening, February 19, at the Auditorium will be presented David Belasco's great play, "The Girl of the Golden West." This is the play that ran for two seasons at the Belasco theater, New York city, and tells a beautiful story of life in California in the days of '49. The cast which numbers 25 people, is an excellent one, and each player has been selected by Mr. Belasco with a view to her or his fitness to the character to be portrayed.

AT THE ORPHAN.

This popular priced play house has an exceptionally strong bill this week and one which has filled the pretty little auditorium for every performance. First on the program are the Smi Letta brothers, comedy bar experts, who do a very clever, but rather short turn. Carl McCullough, the impersonator, gives some very good imitations and sings a song or two in good style. Cora Beach Turner and company give a refined little skit, "A Bluffer Bluffed," in which the Cardui furnishes safe relief for backache, headache, periodical pains, irregular, painful or unhealthy catamenial flow, and all ailments from which sick women suffer. jealousies of a newly married couple and their subsequent happiness are cleverly portrayed. Miss Turner is an actress of unusual merit and her facial expressions are true to nature. Miss Ethel Place who sings the illustrated song, "Somewhere," pleases as usual. Perhaps the longest skit yet presented at the Orphan is by the four Bragdon Brothers, in a late novelty in vaudeville. These four men give impersonations of female and Jew characters, and the parts are dressed in a manner to call forth admiration. The juvenile member of the troupe has a sweet and touching voice, and his songs are always endorsed. The finale to this act is a novelty that must be seen to be appreciated. The life motion pictures are above the average, depicting the robbery of a financier by two shrewd crooks.

THE KING BEE.

"The King Bee" is a sparkling musical comedy with a very large cast, that will occupy the boards in the Auditorium Tuesday evening next, January 29. They have Herman Wilhelm, Bumpaniekle, Hanz and Fritz, and a whole galaxy of fun makers with them. Don't fail to see the "King Bee." It is great.

THREE OF OLD VETERANS ARE IN THE FOLD FOR NEXT SEASON.

Locke Will No Doubt Make Good Under Bob Berryhill's Management—Snyder is In.

Centerfield Al Schweitzer, Newark's best hitter last season is in town mingling with his many friends. Mr. Schweitzer has been visiting at Mr. Vernon for a few days. Schweitzer will talk to Secretary Hopkins this afternoon about the little red contract and in all probability he will sign up before night. There will be no controversy over the salary question.

Joe Locke, the old war horse who pitched so effectively for Newark until small differences arose with the management, has also signed and sent in his contract. Locke is an excellent box man if handled properly, and it is believed that all will be smooth sailing for Manager Bob.

Lefty Snyder's contract was received several days ago so the list is growing steadily day by day. It will be barely two weeks before Berryhill comes to town with his other shirt and a clean collar to stay until fall. After that it will be but a few short weeks until reporting day.

NO BALL PARK AT YOUNGSTOWN

OWNER McDONALD AND STREET RAILWAY MANAGER LOCK HORNS ON PROPOSITION.

Probability That Youngstown Will Not Have Baseball—Stock Company May be Organized.

Youngstown, O., Feb. 13.—Joseph McDonald, owner of the Youngstown baseball team in the O. P. league and the officials of the Mahoning and Shenango Valley Street Railway company, are deadlocked on the question of who shall build a new baseball park for the coming season and the prospects for "professional" baseball here the coming season are not overly bright.

At a meeting between McDonald, his manager, Marty Hogan, and General Manager McCaskey of the street railway company, the latter bluntly informed Mr. McDonald that the street railway would not equip the new park and Mr. McDonald was promptly informed that there would be no baseball here next season, so far as he was concerned.

There is some talk of forming a stock company and turning the franchise over to Marty Hogan in the event that matters are not settled satisfactorily.

VERY REMARKABLE WAS THE CAREER OF MR. GOLDSBOROUGH

ENTERED OIL BUSINESS AT AGE OF 17 YEARS AND ADVANCE WAS VERY RAPID.

Handled Vast Sums of Money For Employers in Buying Oil From Well Owners.

The Pittsburg Dispatch prints the following notice of the death of Jas. R. Goldsborough, who died Tuesday morning.

Immediately associated with the pioneer period of the oil industry in Pennsylvania James Randolph Goldsborough who died Tuesday at his home, 5526 Howe street, East End, had a remarkable career, beginning when he was a mere lad of 17. At that age he went from his Maryland home to Wisconsin in the interests of a Baltimore exporting house. Before reaching majority he was entrusted with a like important commission to Oil City, Pa., when oil production was limited to that locality. The oil was purchased for cash directly from the owners at the wells, and in the transaction of his business Mr. Goldsborough paid out frequently in a single day as high as $50,000. From that time to the day of his death he had been identified with the oil industry, for a time at Parkers Landing, Pa., which made the oil market for the world in the early seventies; then at Bradford, where he was a large producer, and at Cherry Grove. In 1887, when the Producers' Protective Association was formed, he became the secretary and one of the most active members. When the movement to curtail the production was inaugurated, and an agreement made with the Standard by the Producers' Protective Association to that end, Mr. Goldsborough was selected to have charge of the extensive book required to be kept, to see that the individual signers of the agreement kept their contracts, and that the profits of the 6,000,000 barrels of oil purchased by the Standard Oil company to compensate the producers for loss incurred were properly distributed.

Within ten days from the time the last oil was sold and the profits ascertained checks to the producers and well workers amounting to over $300,000 were sent out, thus satisfactorily closing this important movement in the oil industry. All credit for this was given to Mr. Goldsborough.

Soon afterwards when the Producers formed a business movement to permanently engage in all branches of the petroleum business, Mr. Goldsborough was selected to assist in raising the necessary money. After its organization in Bradford in May 1891 he became one of its active members and officers, sparing no labor until he had finally put the struggling company on its feet. It formed the nucleus of the present extensive independent business, of which the Pure Oil company is now the head. At his own request he retired from active connection with the enterprise and had recently gone into the natural gas business.

Mr. Goldsborough was born on February 16, 1844, and would, had he lived four days longer, have celebrated his 63d birthday. He was the only son of Martin and Ann Goldsborough of Euston, Talbot county, Md. He was a Mason and Past Eminent Commander of Knight Templar Trinity Lodge No. 55 of Bradford, Pa. He was a member of the Episcopal church. His wife, Mrs. Helen West Goldsborough, four sons, Randolph Martin Goldsborough, at Bartlesville, Indian Territory, William West Goldsborough, James R. The recent prosecution of a Pittsburg councilman for the mild crime of bribery under the laws of Pennsylvania, unexpectedly resulted in conviction, but the verdict was accompanied with a plea for mercy. It has been remarked that the next thing you may hear will be a recommendation to the consideration of Pittsburg voters that the persecuted councilman be compensated by giving him further honors.

According to reports from Washington, the next move in the matter of settling the San Francisco school controversy must come from Japan. The San Francisco representatives apparently are willing to secure the revocation of the rule against Japanese school children provided they have a guarantee that Japanese coolies, or laborers, will be excluded from this country. President Roosevelt is unable to give such a guarantee; but the government of Japan can. It can either give assurances that it will agree to a treaty excluding Japanese laborers or it can enact a law prohibiting such from coming to the United States.

From King Edward's speech to the British parliament yesterday it is evident that the Liberal ministry proposes to leave nothing undone to enact legislation to which it is pledged. The king's mild but none the less unmistakable reference to the unfortunate differences between the two houses and his statement under consideration with a view of a solution of the difficulty means the ministry proposes to force the fighting with the lords. The king's speech further indicates that the educational bill will again be taken up and that there will be reform measures dealing with Irish local government.

Worley had imprisoned nearly 35 animals.

This is the second time the dogs have been released and this places Worley in the same class with a sheriff as a custodian of prisoners. On the former occasion when the dogs were turned loose, eleven were lost.

Chief Sheridan has taken up the matter, and will energetically push an investigation and if possible, will capture the offender. Mayor McCleery was indignant Wednesday morning when he learned of the outrage, and when the guilty man faces his honor it's a safe bet that it won't look like a good joke from his view point. He has no more right to do this than he has to release the prisoners from the county jail.

The executive committee of the Men's League of the First M. E. church, has arranged for an address by Prof. C. L. Williams of Denison University of Greenville in the parlors of the church on Thursday evening, February 14 at 7:30. All men of the congregation are earnestly requested to come and bring all their male friends over sixteen years of age. It is unnecessary to say that all will be well entertained as Prof. Williams is one of the best platform speakers in the state.

Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the address and a good social time is expected.

Cars Derailed.
Easton, Pa., Feb. 13.—Two cars of the Black Diamond express on the Lehigh Valley railroad were derailed on the bridge crossing the Delaware river here. Both cars, a day coach and a sleeper, were damaged, and the latter slipped to the top of the stone pier and came close to going into the river. Several persons were injured.

Blind Tiger Bill.
Indianapolis, Feb. 13.—The Indiana senate passed the "blinding tiger" bill, prohibiting the sale of intoxicants by druggists without a prescription. The bill has passed the house and is ready for the governor's signature.

IN POLICE COURT.

Only three drinks made the usual morning trip from the prison to police court, Ulica furnishing two of the victims while the third was home gown Guy Robinson and Jacob Snyder were the two Ulica men, Robinson having been arrested in a South Second street saloon. He wandered in with a badly banged up optic and the bartender called the wagon and Officer Snyder arrested the man.

Snyder was arrested Tuesday afternoon on West Main street and created considerable excitement by resisting with great energy. Both were fined $5 and costs and paid up.

Dick Athey drew the usual $5 and costs for being drunk.

Jacob Leibert a German who was arrested in January on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, waits to get out. He was fined $25 and costs because he had a big gun and a number of candles and the police thought he might be a bad man.

Officer Zergel has offered to help the man to get to his home town in Indiana by buying a telescope which was found on the man when he was arrested. The officer is thinking seriously of taking up the study of astronomy and the glass will help him in his efforts.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Prof. Byron W. King, president of King's School of Oratory, Pittsburg, has been secured for a return engagement in Taylor Hall, Monday, February 18. He will probably give his famous lecture "The World as a Stage."

The Sunday Club has also secured Prof. King for a series of Bible readings for next Sunday afternoon. These will be given in Taylor Hall at 3 o'clock for men only. Mr. King is a lecturer of rare ability. He is an adept at the art of entertaining. He comes with a message, and presents it in such a way that one never grows tired of him. He has a happy combination of the humorous and serious that never fails to please and inspire. Special music is being prepared for next Sunday. The men's clubs of the churches, as well as all labor organizations are invited to hear this famous speaker.

Those who heard Mr. King two weeks ago when he gave Bible readings in Taylor hall will welcome his return with pleasure. He spoke to a crowded house February 3 and held his auditors in the closest attention for an hour and a half. His spontaneous humor provoked almost continuous laughter, although everybody felt they had heard a very serious and earnest address. It will repay every man in town to leave his fire-side Sunday afternoon to hear Prof. King.

Broke Her Leg.

Croton, O., Feb. 13.—Miss Stanton E. Hoover, one of the prominent women of Croton, while engaged in feeding chickens this morning, slipped and fell on the frozen ground, breaking one of her legs. This makes three persons that have been injured here within the past few weeks besides Miss Hoover. In all cases they sustained broken bones. Recently Charles Tharp, while driving in a barn with a load of hay, had his back broken, and is now at a sanitarium in Mt. Vernon, and David Drubach and L. M. Ogilvie had their legs broken while hauling logs.

An Old Paper.

Mr. W. F. Holton brought to the Advocate office on Wednesday a copy of an old New York World that is quite a curiosity. Mr. Holton found the paper among a lot of old papers that had descended to him from his father, the late G. W. Holton. The paper bears date of January 1 1842 and has the name of Park Benjamin at its masthead as its editor. The paper contains eight pages, with 12 columns to the page. The columns are four feet in length and the paper is over five feet in width. The heading, "The New York World," is printed in two inch black type, with a large picture of Columbus landing on the shores of America, at the top of the first page. Mr. Holton values the paper very much and wouldn't trade it for a good sized farm.

COUNT CREIGHTON GAVE FORTUNE TO CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS

Death of a Striking Character Who Was Born in This County --His Millions Were Useful to Him Only as They Could be of Benefit to Others.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 13.—In the death of Count John Andrew Creighton, whose funeral took place Saturday, the West has lost one of its most striking characters. He was a pioneer conspicuous in many ways. The millions that he had acquired by his own industry and foresight were useful to him only as wealth could be used for the general benefit of his fellow men; and, though lauded by the press and the public, he remained to the end a sturdy exemplar of the simple life. "My only child" was the favorite expression, which told of his love for the great Creighton University that stands as one of the prominent memorials of his munificence. Of his various benefactions, his charitable works involving donations of millions, no institution gave him so much happiness unless it be St. Joseph's Hospital, which was founded as a memorial to his wife, and which by his philanthropy has attained prominence among the greater hospitals of the country.

During the funeral service all business of every kind was suspended from 10 to 12 o'clock. The banks were closed, and for five minutes all street cars and every piece of machinery in the city shut down.

Attending the funeral were many Catholic bishops and priests from surrounding states. Every student of Creighton University and the various Creighton technical schools attended in a body, and hundreds of the alumni of the institutions were present.

St. John's church was filled, and the street for a block in each direction was impassable. Around the residence for two blocks in all directions the streets were crowded.

John A. Creighton was the youngest of nine children of James Creighton, a native of County Monaghan, Ireland, who came to America a poor emigrant in 1855, and who six years later in Philadelphia married Bridget Hughes of County Armagh, Ireland. Soon after his marriage James Creighton removed to Pittsburg and a year later to Belmont county, Ohio, where he engaged in farming. Subsequently he settled in Licking county, in the same state, where his son, where his son, John A. Creighton, was born October 15, 1831. John A. Creighton's early education was such as the district schools of the community afforded. After the death of his father, in 1842, the home farm was sold, and it was decided by the family that John A.'s portion of the inheritance, amounting to $600, be spent in defraying his expense at some higher educational institution. In 1852 he entered St. Joseph's College at Somerset, Ohio, and there he studied civil engineering. His mother died in 1854, and he left college, not to return.

His first business experience was with his brother, Edward in the construction of a telegraph line between Toledo and Cleveland. Thenceforth the fortunes of the two brothers were closely intertwined. In July, 1861, Edward Creighton had secured the contract for constructing the Pacific Telegraph, and was joined by John A. at Larimer, Wyoming. In the spring of 1863, with James, his younger brother, John A. went to the newly discovered gold fields of Montana, in the vicinity of Virginia and Bannack, and John A. opened a store for the sale of miners' supplies at Virginia City.

During Mr. Creighton's days at Virginia City, there were strenuous times. The "road agents" were guilty of no fewer than one hundred and three murders. None but the bravest men would dare to even intimate that he knew anything as to the personnel of the outlaw gang. Creighton, however, was one of five men to take up the organization of the famous "vigilance committee," whose diligent and fearless work brought about the execution of forty-seven of the "road agents," including the notorious Sheriff Plummer, their leader.

In 1866 Mr. Creighton disposed of his mercantile interests in Montana and returned to Omaha to make this city his permanent home. That year with his brother he built the Western Union Telegraph line from Salt Lake City to Helena, Mont., via Virginia City.

On June 9, 1868, Mr. Creighton was married to Miss Sarah Emily Wareham, a woman of estimable character, and in whose memory St. Joseph's Hospital was erected and toward which John A. Creighton donated a quarter of a million dollars. She became the mother of one child, a daughter, who died in infancy. Mrs. Creighton died in 1888. Soon after his marriage John A. Creighton engaged in the grocery business in Omaha, and later in the forwarding and freighting business from Utah points to Montana. In 1873 he disposed of his interests in the grocery business, and in 1879 quit the freighting business. In the meantime, owing to the death of his brother Edward, he was intrusted with the management of vast interests, over which he became the executor upon the death of Mrs. Edward Creighton in 1876, together with his cousin, James Creighton, and the late Herman Kountze.

Mr. Creighton was one of the prime movers in the organization of the South Omaha Stock Yards company, a stockholder in the Omaha and Council Bluffs Street Railway company and had extensive bank interests in Butte, Mont., South Omaha and Omaha, at the time of his death being president of the First National Bank of Omaha, succeeding Herman Kountze.

While he gave vast sums to charity he was frugal in his living. He was the most sociable of men and made little distinction between classes. Always of jovial disposition and sunny temperament, he was easily approachable. An indication of his character is found in his interest in the hundreds of patients cared for in St. Joseph's Hospital. He made it a practice to visit the institution twice a week. One of his days was Sunday for this duty, and he would carry with him a large supply of candy for such inmates as were allowed to partake of it. His cheery voice and quaint humor often had a better therapeutic effect than the medicine of the doctors. His packages of candy became known familiarly among those connected with the institution as "Creighton's pills."

Many anecdotes are related by his intimate friends of his doings. Once at a Chicago hotel two Sisters of Mercy entered the place where a convention was in progress and attempted to dispose of tickets for some charity. As the sisters approached Count Creighton he said: "Sisters, this is no place for you. Take this and consider all your tickets sold," and handed to them a $500 bill.

His benefactions included: St. Joseph's Hospital (Creighton Memorial) $ 250,000
Convent, Sisters of Poor Clare 100,000
John A. Creighton Medical College (Creighton University) 50,000
Edward Creighton Institute and College of Law 60,000
Creighton Building to Creighton University 125,000
Arlington Building to Creighton University 75,000
Byrne and Hammer Building to Creighton University 300,000
Deere Plow Co. Building to Creighton University 100,000
Miscellaneous charities (estimated) 1,000,000

Total $2,060,000
A peculiarity of Count Creighton was that he would never even suggest in what manner the different institutions should be conducted toward which he gave his support once his gifts were made. He was a father to the hundreds of students at the university. He had a cheering word for all, and no other man was more beloved by them than he. In their sports he took a lively interest, and he would always be counted upon to make good any deficiency that a trip of the football or the baseball teams might meet with peculiarly. He purchased instruments and uniforms for the university band, and paid the salary of a special teacher.

Count Creighton's chief mission in life was to assist his less fortunate fellowmen, and he died in the belief that his philanthropy had not yet reached ample consummation.

CREIGHTON WILL IS NOT FOUND

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 13.—The last will of the late Count John A. Creighton has disappeared, and all efforts of the executors to find it have been unavailing. A will made three years ago has been found, but it is believed there is a later one. Judge Woolworth, Count Creighton's lawyer, died one year ago. It is believed Woolworth drew the will, but no record of it is among his papers. Since the will which was found was drawn, Count Creighton has disposed of much property, having sold one mine for $5,000,000. None of this is accounted for in the will which has been found.

NEED VINOL for it hastens recovery by creating strength

Our local druggist, Frank D. Hall says: "There is just one thing the matter with a person who has been sick—that is, weakness. 'To all such people in Newark we recommend our delicious cod liver oil preparation, Vinol, as the very best strength creator for convalescents we have ever sold in our store.'

"Vinol strengthens the digestive organs, creates an appetite, promotes sound sleep, makes rich, red blood, and builds up a depleted system to health and vigor.

"This is because Vinol contains in a highly concentrated form all of the medicinal and strength creating elements of cod liver oil, actually taken from fresh cods' livers with the useless, nauseating oil eliminated, and tonic iron added.

"We return money to those who buy Vinol and receive no benefit." Frank D. Hall, Druggist.

Note—While we are sole agents for Vinol in Newark, it is now for sale at the leading drug store in nearly every town and city in the country. Look for the Vinol agency in your town.

AIKEN LAW INCREASED REVENUE OVER FOUR MILLION DOLLARS

Auditor of State Makes Annual Report Showing That Only 109 Saloons in Ohio Quit Business--Odd Fellows Elected State Officers--Ohio News.

Columbus, O., Feb. 13.—A total of $9,219,664.98 was collected from liquor dealers in Ohio during the first year of the Aiken $1,000 law, according to a statement issued by the auditor of state.

During each of the two half years that the Aiken law has been in operation the collections have been greater than in the largest complete year under the Dow law. The total Dow law receipts for the state's fiscal year 1905, which is the last that can be used for comparison, were $1,309,714.86. In July the state's share of the Aiken law receipts was $1,392,046.12. In January it was $1,376,821.66. The total was $2,768,867.84. During 1905 the state received $1,296,597.32 from the Dow law. Local funds received $6,451,540.01 from the Aiken law during the first year.

The financial results show that the Aiken law is a great revenue producer, though a failure as a temperance measure, only 109 saloons in the entire state having gone out of business since July, 1906.

a simple remedy for liver trouble and biliousness

Guaranteed under Food and Drug Act, June 30, 1906. Serial Number 3517.

The liver is a wonderful organ, always at work filtering, purifying and manufacturing ingredients necessary to life. It is the central laboratory of the body. It plays the part of a natural poison antidote. The poison contained in the decomposing food and waste of the body are arrested by it and rendered harmless. The liver is the seat of manufacture of bile, a fluid that keeps sweet the intestine and aids to digest food. Healthy bile is an antiseptic and when deficient or absent the contents of the bowels become putrid and full of poisonous matter. You can always keep your liver in a healthy condition by using Dr. Edwards' Comp. Dandelion Tablets or Pills. They act directly upon the liver and produce a healthy flow of bile.

No Change Necessary In Rexall Remedies

The new Pure Food Law requires every patent medicine manufacturer to tell just what dangerous drug is in his medicine. Certain periodicals interested in patent medicine reform have declared that the formulas of many patent medicines will have to be changed before the manufacturers will dare conform with this law. These periodicals also declare that the public will never know of these changes, and never know what these remedies formerly contained.

This suspicion, however, cannot rest upon Rexall Remedies. You have absolute proof that Rexall Remedies have not been changed to conform with the new Pure Food Law, because you know the formulas of these remedies four years ago! The Rexall formulas were never secret. The thousand Rexall druggists have always known all the Rexall formulas and given them to every customer who asked for them.

No one Rexall Remedy was ever claimed to be a "cure-all"—each of the 300 remedies is designed to cure a certain human ill—and does it. These 300 remedies were selected from among thousands because they were the most reliable and successful cures in the world. Far from wishing to conceal the formulas of these remedies, we are proud to tell just what they are, and always have been.

That's where the Rexall plan goes further to safeguard you than does the Pure Food Law. Even now you'll only know the dangerous drugs in other patent medicines, while you have always been able to know the complete formulas of Rexall Remedies!

The Rexall guarantee has been the greatest evidence of the sincerity back of the Rexall Remedies. For four years Rexall druggists have offered to return the money to any one who brought back an empty Rexall bottle or package and said they were not satisfied.

We, as one of the Rexall druggists, feel a genuine satisfaction in having been able to supply this community for four years with one line of medicines which the United States Government by its new Pure Food Law shows were always made right and sold right, and have deserved every bit of the faith you have had in them.

The Pure Food Law may necessitate changes in other medicines, but it only endorses Rexall Remedies.

THIS AND THAT

What kind or what is the explanation of the magnitude that a plant displays that when it is being transplanted that it throws its root out to the soil on each side of the hole in the new earth?

There is a clock on sale now for use in saloons; it is called the "Skidoo" clock and instead of striking twelve o'clock at midnight it strikes twenty-three.

The losing of valuable dogs by alleged affectionate owners since the inauguration of the city's dog pond, is getting to be a pretty dog-dog subject to discuss. But then if the owner doesn't have respect enough for his esteemed dog to tag him he deserves to lose him.

The grain markets are again quite busy. Oats and wheat are the active grains, and some considerable money has changed hands in this locality since things got busy. If you must buy margins, limit your losses as well as your profits, and be sure to only tell your friends what a good thing it is when you win. You'll keep mum enough when you lose.

Not for many years have the "Valentines" been so dainty, elaborate and so costly; they are gotten up in every conceivable form, and as tokens of love they are entirely appropriate. Some are in book form, and are copies of poems on love and its attributes, and are bound in dainty covers, making veritable "Editions De Luxe." Post cards as valentines are numerous in design and are, for a wonder, mostly in good taste.

As cheap as gas engines are, and as easily installed as they are, and considering how cheap fuel is, there is no excuse for small towns now being without a water works, at least for fire protection. A case in point is Utica, O. Lots of gas there, plenty of water, and such a plant could be installed for fire purposes at a cost not exceeding $5,000 to $10,000, and a

A few of the 300 famous REXALL Remedies, one for each human ill, are:

FOR CATARRH—MUCO-TONE

The chief ingredients of Muc-Tone are Gentian, Cubeb, Cascara Sagrada, Glycine and Sarsaparilla. It is a powerful tonic, and one of the greatest tonics ever discovered. It combines the tonic powers of all known "bitters," with none of the disadvantages applying to any. Cubeb has long been recognized as a specific in the treatment of all catarrhal conditions. Its action is prompt and its benefit almost immediate. Cascara Sagrada is especially introduced for its unsurpassable laxative properties. The combination of these with Glycine and Sarsaparilla makes Muc-Tone a remedy that attacks catarrh from every point and gradually restores the diseased tissues. Bottle, 50c.

FOR NERVES—AMERICANIS ELIXIR

The Rexall Americanis Elixir is a tonic, nerve food composed chiefly of Iron Phosphorus, Glycophosphates, Iron Pyrophosphate and Calaisya. The wonderful results of this remedy are due to the fact that it supplies Phosphorus to the nerve cells in a condition in which it can be immediately and easily taken up by them. The Glycophosphates, actual nerve tissue builders, are one of the most recent and valuable additions to this branch of medicine and unquestionably a more efficient remedy than the well-known Hypophosphites. The Iron Pyrophosphates are the most easily assimilated form of iron which give tone and color, and the combined alkaloids of Calaisya have a tonic effect on almost all the functions of the body. 70c. and $1.50 a bottle.

REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC

The famous Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is composed in chief of Resorcin, Beta Naphthol and Pilocarpin. Resorcin is one of the latest and most effective germicides discovered by science, and in connection with Beta Naphthol, which is both germicidal and antiseptic, a combination is formed which not only destroys the germs which rob the hair of its nutriment, but creates a clean and healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the development of new germs. Pilocarpin is a well-known agent for restoring the hair to its natural color, where the loss of color has been due to a disease of the scalp. It is not a coloring matter or dye. This combination of curatives mixed with alcohol as a stimulant, perfects the most effective remedy for hair and scalp troubles known today. Per bottle, 50c.

"REXALL" ORDERLIES

The New Laxative. If you suffer from constipation or a sluggish liver, we want you to try this newest member of the Rexall family. It has never failed. "Rexall" Orderlies have all the virtues and none of the defects of those laxatives and cathartics already known. They are harmless, pleasant, and effective. They are a re-adjustment of Nature's functions—no gripping, no nausea, no purging. Pleasant to the taste—they give immediate relief. A trial will prove to you that they are the best laxative and cathartic ever prescribed. 10c. a box of twelve; 25c. a box of 36.

Two Things of Which Lincoln Was Ashamed

By ROBERTUS LOVE

Copyright, 1907, by Robertus Love

DURING his more than four years as president of the United States Abraham Lincoln took but one vacation. That was just after the beginning of his new term, after four years of constant application to the nation's business in time of terrible civil war. The vacation ended but a few days before the assassination of Mr. Lincoln, but it was a glorious vacation and was greatly enjoyed by the sad and weary president.

Lincoln's vacation was quite different from the presidential outings to which we are accustomed of late. He did not seek a sequestered lake far up in the north, where he could fish, cut bait and swap yarns with cronies, nor plentifully sprinkled with friends, and no harm came to him, nor was there any threat of harm. He was enjoying his holiday. He talked to many officers regarding the coming peace and what should be done for the restoration of the south. His advice was for liberal terms and kindness to the southern people.

The president returned to City Point, where a squad of Confederate prisoners cheered him. He turned to Admiral Porter and remarked:

"They will never shoulder a musket again in anger, and if Grant is wise he will leave them their guns to shoot crows with and their horses to plow with."

"Let them down easy," he had said to the military governor of Richmond.

Word reached the president at City Point that his secretary of state, Mr. Seward, had been thrown from a carriage and injured. This cut short his vacation, for he returned to Washington at once. It was observed by members of his cabinet upon his return that a great change had come over the president. His thin face had grown thinner during the increasing sorrows of the war, and latterly it had assumed a gray pallor that was almost ghastly. His eyes looked forth an unutterable grief. He had borne the burdens of a great nation in its time of keenest agony, and the terrible stress and strain of those four years were reflected in the features of the man.

But now—after his first and only vacation—what a change! The man walked with a springy step, the stoop disappeared from his shoulders, the tense lines in his drawn, sad face began to disappear, and there was a hint of ruddiness in his cheeks, and his laugh was hearty.

Yet it was not the vacation that had rejuvenated Lincoln. It was the very recent success of his armies, the evacuation of Richmond and, last and greatest, the surrender of Lee on the 9th of April—these things had transformed him. For five days he was the happiest man in the United States or in the world, the happiest because for four years he had been the saddest, and now that indescribable sadness, in the words of one of his friends, "had been suddenly changed for an equally indescribable expression of serene joy, as if conscious that the great purpose of his life had been achieved."

During this time he said to his wife: "Mary, we have had a hard time of it since we came to Washington, but now we shall have four more years here of

AN OLD NEGRO THREW HIMSELF AT THE FEET OF LINCOLN.

He betake himself to a swampy jungle or a mountain fastness to shoot bears or wildcats. He took a boat ride. He went down to City Point, to see how General Grant's army was getting along. Grant had his headquarters there in a group of cottages on a high bluff where the James and the Appomattox rivers join. For ten days the president lived there, greeting his great generals, chatting with the lesser officers and visiting the private soldiers in their tents. Always for commanding general or for the blue bloused man in the ranks he had a word of cheer and frequently a funny little story that illustrated some wise point of argument.

It was an odd sort of vacation. Lincoln called it his holiday, but as a matter of fact he was still at work, doing his duty by the people, making personal inspection of the army and offering in his almost apologetic manner now and then a suggestion to General Grant.

General Sherman, fresh from his famous march to the sea, visited City Point to confer with Lincoln and Grant. All knew that the war was drawing to its close; that the great struggle was nearly over; that ultimate victory lay just beyond. Grant and Sherman each believed that he must fight one more terrible battle.

"Don't do it if you can help it," urged the humane Lincoln. "No more bloodshed, no more bloodshed," he repeatedly said.

All day on the 31st of March, when Grant was beginning his final movement against Lee, Lincoln sat in the telegraph office at headquarters forwarding to Mr. Stanton, secretary of war, the reports that came in from Grant, who was here and there and everywhere up and down his long line of army maneuvers. Joyous news Lincoln sent to Washington. One item was the victory of General Sheridan at Five Points on the 1st of April. Another was the evacuation of Petersburg. The president himself entered Petersburg but a few hours after the Confederates moved out for a final talk with Grant, who was about to move on from there after the retreating army.

On the 2d of April the joyful news that Richmond had been evacuated reached City Point, and Lincoln immediately said, "I want to see Richmond."

Two days later he started up the James, and, with four friends and a guard of ten United States marines, the president of the United States, landing from his little steamer, walked into Richmond, the Confederate capital, which for four years his armies had been trying to capture. It is related that an old negro threw himself at the feet of Lincoln, kissing the big boots which he wore, and cried out: "Bress de Lawd! Heah am de great Messiah!"

Such crowds gathered about the president, who was so tall that he could be seen and recognized even from the outer edge of the multitude, that the small guard of marines had a hard struggle to get him through the throng to the White House of the Confederacy, the home of Jefferson Davis during the war. Mr. Davis of course had taken his departure. The Federal troops made his house their headquarters. For two days Lincoln remained in Richmond, amid a hostile population easier times, and then we'll go back to Illinois and live the rest of our lives in peace and quiet. I'll open a law office in Springfield or Chicago and do work enough to make a living for us."

"MARY, WE HAVE HAD A HARD TIME OF IT."

Then on the night of April 14, when the rejuvenated chief was smiling broadly at a comedian's joke in the theater, came the assassin's bullet.

A New Lincoln Story.

In her book "Dixie After the War," Mrs. Myrtle Lockett Avery tells the following new Lincoln story in connection with General Pickett, who led the charge at Gettysburg: Mr. Lincoln had taken warm interest in young George Pickett as a cadet at West Point. During his hurried sojourn in Richmond Lincoln's carriage and armed retinue drew up in front of the old Pickett mansion. The general's young wife came out with her baby in her arms and said, "I am General Pickett's wife."

"Madam," Lincoln answered, "I am George's old friend, Abraham Lincoln."

"The president of the United States?" she asked.

"No," said the visitor, with a smile. "Only Abraham Lincoln, George's old friend."

The child reached out his hands, and when Lincoln took him in his arms he kissed the president.

"Tell your father," said Lincoln, "that I will grant him a special amnesty—if he wants it—for the sake of your mother's bright eyes and your good manners."

BEING A BOY

By Byron Williams.

Yes, being a boy has its triumphs,
At least to a man looking back—
A glamorous, glorious boyhood!
Utopian joys, what a stack!
With swimming, and fishing, and trapping,
And hunting the Indian wild!
Ah! days of Cocagne, lotus laden,
When man was a minion—a child!
But nevertheless in my dreaming
There rankles, my ardor to cool,
The thoughts of the mandate which bade me
Saw wood for the house after school!

Far harder and tougher, than rock!
At sunset when all of my fellows
Were tempting the big fish to bite,
'Twas I to that tyrant, the woodpile,
To get up the wood for the night!
The stoves were red demons of fury
That joyed in their gourmandish glee,
Each generous crackle and sparkle
Portending more sawing for me!

At night, in my little back bedroom,
There stalked a grim spectre in white;
Its face was the blade of a buck-saw,
Its legs were jack-oak! What a sight!
Yes, being a boy has its triumphs,
At least to a man looking back—
But give me the days of my manhood, Though something of boyhood they lack;
Give me mature age and its sceptre,
Its glory of battle withstood—
When I may no longer be chided
To hustle outdoors and saw wood!

RICHARD III

Given a Reading by Mr. F. L. Garrity at Taylor Hall Tuesday Evening.

Mr. Francis L. Garrity, who appeared at Taylor Hall Tuesday night, supported by Miss Mabel Ackland and the Cosmopolitan company, entertained a fair sized audience with a delightful scenic recital of Shake-spear's Richard III. The cast of characters as presented by the company was as follows:
Richard, Duke of Gloster, afterwards King Richard III., Mr. F. L.

Garrity.

Buckingham, Richmond, Mr. F.

Christy.

Henry VI., Lord Mayor, Eugene

Garrity.

Catesby, Lieutenant, Mr. Chas.

Daly.

Lady Anne, Miss Mabel Ackland.

Mr. Garrity portrayed the character of the terrible king most admirably, and was heartily applauded by the audience. His talent and rare genius were well exhibited throughout the entire program.

Some very pleasing musical numbers were rendered during the evening by Miss Margaret Mulvy, violinist, whose home is in Zanesville, O., and Miss Mary Mulvy, pianist.

The evening was most enjoyable and the audience was carried from smiles to tears but finally left Taylor Hall expressing complete satisfaction with the evening's program.

Does Your Stomach Feel Happy when Meal Time Comes?

When you sniffle in the air the appetizing aroma of something cooking, do you feel that you could sit down, open your mouth, pin back your ears and eat with a delicious gusto, everything set before you, and not feel any bad effects from it?

In other words, can your poor stomach take care of everything and anything you put into it? There are thousands and thousands of people who do not know what it is to have a good, strong, healthy stomach, nor do they realize what it is to have a good appetite.

You can have an all powerful stomach and a fetching appetite for every meal, and every day, if you give your stomach a rest, and let something else take hold of your food for yu and digest it as it comes into the stomach, something that is harmless but that really does the work of digesting, quickly and thoroughly.

This "something" is Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, the most effective little tablets in the world for curing anything that may be wrong with your stomach. One ingredient of these precious little workers digests 3,000 grains of the coarsest or richest food put into the stomach. Think of it, 3,000 grains! They are really an artificial stomach, because they act just like the stomach, they digest your food, just as though you didn't have a stomach at all. It supplies the stomach with the digestive juices which have become weak and scanty.

Then your indigestion, dyspepsia, sour risings, brash, belchings, acidity, fermentation, loss of appetite, averburn and nausea, will be no more.

You can then eat anything you want,
all you want, whenever you want,
and your stomach will feel fine before and after your meals. Your appetite will be a thing of pleasure to have, your meals will be a pleasure to eat and relish, and your digestion will be thorough and soothing to the whole body.

You can't do your work well, or be cheerful, or have energy or vim or ambition, when your stomach is bad.
Make yourself feel good after a hearty meal, feel good all over, clear your mind and make you enjoy life, by taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

ANOTHER NEGRO

Who Says the Shots Were Fred From the Town.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Thomas H.
Green, who was the quartermaster sergeant of Company B, Twenty-fifth infantry, stationed at Brownsville, appeared before senate military affairs committee and told of seeing flashes from guns, followed by reports of the guns. He said that the shooting came from the town. On cross-examination he said that he had never told anyone of seeing the flashes from the guns, and that he did not consider it the duty of an enlisted man to investigate the effects of the shooting. According to Green's account of the incidents of the night of Aug. 13, he did not sleep well and was awake when the first shot was fired. His room was in the building occupied by Company D, and located on the side next to the town.
He said he rose in bed and saw the firing, and that it was apparent to him that an attack was being made on the garrison. After that he dressed and assumed his duty upon the call to arms being sounded.

GREAT HOLE IN STEAMER'S SIDE

WAS TORN BY THE COLLISION AND THE DOOMED VESSEL
SOON FOUNDERED.

Many Were Drowned in Their Bunks, Others Were Frozen to Death in the Boats.

Block Island, R. I., Feb. 13.—Appalling loss of life attended the collision in Block Island sound between the three-masted schooner Harry Knowlton and the Joy line steamer Larchmont, bound from Providence to New York city. It is reliably estimated that, including the crew, there were nearly 200 persons on board the steamer when she sailed from Providence. Of these only 19 appear to have survived the disaster, 10 members of the crew and nine passengers.
Over 50 bodies have been recovered.
Awakened from their slumbers in their staterooms, the unfortunate passengers were at the mercy of the fates. Many, it is believed, went down with the ship. Others, temporarily thankful that they had escaped drowning, prayed that they might be relieved of the terrible pain caused by their frozen bodies, and one man, a passenger, whose name could not be learned, plunged a knife into his throat and ended his sufferings.

Owing to the condition of the survivors it was impossible to get from them an estimate of the loss of life.
From 75 to 150 persons went to their death, and it is believed that the latter figures are nearer correct. The steamship officials estimate that about 150 passengers and a crew of 50 were on board the steamer when she left Providence. Fifty bodies reached these shores and 19 were alive when taken from the lifeboats. Taking the estimated figures of the steamship officials as a basis, there are still over 130 persons to be accounted for. The only positive evidence of the steamer's victims is lying at the bottom of Block Island sound. The list of passengers and crew, handed to the purser just before the steamer left Providence, was locked in a safe, and it was not recovered.

The cause of the accident has not been satisfactorily explained. It occurred just off Watch Hill, about 11 o'clock Monday night, when the three-masted schooner Harry Knowlton, bound from South Amboy for Boston with a cargo of coal, crashed into the steamer's port side amidships. Captain George McVey of the Larchmont declares that the Knowlton suddenly swerved from her course, luffed up into the wind and crashed into his vessel. Captain Haley of the Knowlton declares the steamer did not give his vessel sufficient sea room.

The steamer, with a huge hole torn in her side, was so seriously damaged that no attempt was made to run for shore, and she sank to the bottom in less than half an hour. The Knowlton, after she had backed away from the wreck, began to fill rapidly, but her crew manned the pumps and kept her afloat until she reached a point off Quonochontaug, where they put out in the lifeboat and rowed ashore. There were no fatalities on the schooner.
A majority of those on the Larchmont had retired for the night, and when the collision occurred there were few, with the exception of the crew, prepared for the weather which prevailed. They hurried from the warm staterooms to the deck of the steamer and into a zero atmosphere.
Chilled to the bone, many rushed headlong below to secure more clothing, while others, barefooted, bareheaded and clad only in night gowns, stood on the decks, fearing that to go below would mean certain death.

Fisher's Point, the nearest point of land, was not quite five miles to the westward of the point where the steamer went down, and every boat immediately headed for that place. A 50-mile gale blew on their backs as the men strained at the ice-covered oars in a hopeless endeavor to overcome the handicap against which they were struggling. The boats and rafts soon became separated. Captain Mc-Vey said that had his crew been able to make progress against the northwest gale, they would have landed at Fisher's island between 12 and 1 o'clock. The wind, however, was too strong to be overcome, and there was nothing left for the suffering seamen but turn around and head for Block Island, 15 miles away.

RHEUMATISM CAN NOT BE RUBBED AWAY

Whenever an attack of Rheumatism comes on with its throbbing muscles, twitching nerves, and aching, painful joints, relief must be had at once, and any treatment that will ease the pain and allay the suffering is desirable. A good liniment or plaster, or some home remedy will usually give temporary relief and comfort, but Rheumatism is more than skin deep and cannot be rubbed away, nor can it be drawn out with a plaster. Such treatment neither prevents nor cures; the excess of acid is still in the blood and at the next exposure to inclement weather, or after an attack of indigestion or constipation or other irregularity, the symptoms will return, and with each succeeding attack the pain becomes more severe because of the constant accumulation of acid in the blood.

All food taken into the body contains, in some form, the elements necessary to nourish and sustain the different parts. One portion is used for the making of blood, another for muscle, another for bone, another for fat, and so on. After these different properties have been extracted there still remains a portion that is useless, or waste matter, which is intended to be carried off by nature; but the sluggish, inactive condition of the different members interferes with the workings of nature, and this refuse is left in the system to sour and form uric and other acids, which are absorbed into the blood. The acid, irritating matter in the circulation settles in the joints, muscles, nerves and bones, and it is this that produces the pain, inflammation, swelling and other disagreeable symptoms of Rheumatism.

Unless the blood is cleansed of the uric acid poison Rheumatism becomes chronic, and a serious and dangerous disease. The pains which at first were wandering or shifting from place to place become sharp and cutting, the muscles lose their elasticity, and as the irritating sediment is deposited in the joints, stiffness of the limbs takes place and sometimes the hands, feet, arms or legs become permanently locked and useless.

To effect a permanent cure the blood must be purified, the acid poison counteracted and all irritating matter removed from the circulation, and nothing does this so quickly or surely as S. S. S. It contains not only purifying and tonic properties, but solvent qualities as well, all these being necessary in the cure of Rheumatism.
S. S. S. goes down to the very bottom of the trouble and attacks the disease at its head, and after it has filtered out of the blood all acrid and impure matter it adds freshness and vigor to the circulation. Then instead of being a weak, sour stream, distributing uric acid to the different parts of the system, it is strong and healthy, and therefore able to supply the body with nourishment and strength.

S. S. S. is Nature's remedy, made entirely of roots, herbs and barks, and is the one medicine that is absolutely harmless to any part of the system and at the same time a certain cure for Rheumatism. Write us about your case and our physicians will give you any needed medical advice, and will send our special book on Rheumatism. No charge made for the book or advice.

"LET THE DEAD BURY THE DEAD"

SAID FORMER GOVERNOR HERRICK IN SPEAKING OF SENATOR FORAKER.

The Latter Has Had Two Burials and May Soon Be Laid Away Again.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 13.—Former Governor Herrick returned from the east Tuesday and was shown the recent Washington dispatches in which Senator Foraker, replying to the governor's criticism, said: "De mortuis nil."

"If my Latin is of any use," said Mr. Herrick, laughing heartily, "that means 'Of the dead nothing.' Now I don't want to dig up the dead past and the dead languages in this little controversy. If I were going to reply to our distinguished senator I should say I should urge the good old English text, 'Let the dead bury the dead.'"

"The question is, who is most available for the delivery of the funeral oration, Foraker or I?"

"As between the senator and myself, I should feel that he has the better of it in the mortuary class. He has two burials, and I am still one behind him. And it is not impossible, if the Ohio political astrophysicists read the stars aright that soon he may add another to his score."

The governor declared that his mission to the capital and New York was not a political one and that he heard little presidential gossip while away.

WAS DR. BURNER'S DEATH A SUICIDE?

A Dispatch Says That He Took Chloroform, But Newark Relatives Deny Suicide.

The Enquirer prints the following dispatch from Los Angeles, Cal., concerning the death of Dr. H. Russell Burner, at one of his sanitariums in California:

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 13.—Dr. H. Russell Burner, founder of five milk and radium sanitariums here, in San Diego and in the Pacific beach cities, was found dying of chloroform, self-administered, Tuesday, by his niece, and died one hour later in his sanitarium on East Fourth street. Attendants say Dr. Burner took chloroform for habitual insomnia. However he has had much trouble, and the State Board of Health had slain an inquiry into his business.

Always a man of hasty temper, his first wife having procured a divorce on these grounds, Dr. Burner had fretted greatly of late. His young wife and two young children had separated from him, and he took this to heart greatly.

Dr. Burner practiced in Newark, O. 40 years.

Friends of Dr. Burner in Newark scout the idea of suicide, but are awaiting more details concerning his death and funeral arrangements.

PRES. ROOSEVELT SENDS ANOTHER SPECIAL MESSAGE

Washington, Feb. 13.—President Roosevelt sent an important message to congress today on the subject of safeguarding the mineral and grazing lands of the public domain. It says in part:

"To the Senate and House of Representatives—I call your attention to the urgent need at legislation affecting the different phases of the public land situation in the United States. In my last annual message I recommended to congress the enactment of such legislation as would provide for title to and development of the surface land as separate and distinct from the right to the underlying mineral fuels in regions where these occur.

"Let me also again urge that legislation be passed to provide for government control of the public pasture lands of the west on the same general principles which now apply in the government control of the forest reserves. At present it is unlawful to fence the public domain. All fences unlawfully maintained will have to be taken down. Unless Congress takes action to legalize reasonable and necessary fencing through government control of the range there will be serious loss to stockmen throughout the west, and this loss will fall hardest on the small men; for in many cases the stock business cannot be conducted without fences.

"I wish to express my utter and complete dissent from the statements that have been made as to the being but a minimum of fraud in the working of our present land laws.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT"

THAW TRIAL

of the district attorney as to how he came into possession of knowledge as to the character of the operation upon Miss Nesbit without a violation of a confidence.

Mr. Jerome said he had been told of it by Miss Nesbit's mother. It thus became known for the first time that the district attorney is in possession of a long statement by Mrs. Holman, who now is in Pittsburg, but who, it has been reported, might be called as a witness by the state in rebuttal.

Dr. Evans was by far the most satisfactory expert witness for the defense so far produced. He detailed to the jury his observations and examinations of Harry Thaw during eight visits to the prisoner in the Tombs, and declared it to be his opinion that Thaw was suffering from "a brain storm or an explosive or fulminating condition of mental unsoundness" at the time he shot and killed Stanford White. Dr. Evans declared that the mental explosion which had induced Thaw to kill Stanford White had left its traces upon the defendant when he first visited him. He said Thaw exhibited symptoms of paranoia and adolescent insanity. The first was indicated by his exaltation, his "exaggerated ego"—the idea of his supreme importance. The adolescent insanity was due to heredity, and is characteristic to the development period of life. Dr. Evans declared Thaw's mind had slipped its moorings and was like a ship without a rudder in a windstorm. Ordeals of stress had added their work to the psychopathic taint which came from heredity. Dr. Evans declared that as a result of his first three visits to Thaw following the tragedy he was convinced that the man was of unsound mind. As the result of his last visits he found that, while still suffering from a somewhat exaggerated opinion of self-importance, he was much improved. The improvement was not stationary during this time, he said, but progressive. This testimony was brought out in line with the contention of the defense that while Thaw was insane prior to and at the time and immediately subsequent to the homicide, he has improved to a sound condition of mentality following the removal of the cause of stress.

The famous affidavit in which Evelyn Nesbit charged that she had suffered the grossest cruelties at the hands of Harry K. Thaw is said to be in the hands of the district attorney. Contrary to the belief of the young witness that it had been destroyed in her presence, it had been jealously guarded by Attorney A. H. Hummel, who, after a secret conference with the prosecutor, turned it over to him. This is regarded as the greatest piece of evidence in the possession of the state. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw testified that the accusations were conjured in Hummel's brain and that she was forced to sign the paper at the dictation of Stanford White. The lawyer declares her sworn statement was false in every particular, and has volunteered to turn over to Mr. Jerome witnesses who will swear that after Evelyn Nesbit left Thaw in Paris and returned to New York, that, instead of the architect pursuing her, she threw herself into his arms and voluntarily went to Mr. Hummel's office and had him draw the damaging paper against the man who later became her husband.

BRYAN IN IOWA TALKS POLITICS

Addressed Both Houses of the Legislature and Was Given a Flattering Reception.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 13.—William J. Bryan was given an ovation by the state legislature, that is overwhelmingly Republican. He appeared on invitation before the two houses of the Iowa general assembly and made an address in which he discussed the entire range of political issues, and which was accepted by the Democratic of the legislature as a tentative platform for the presidential campaign for 1908. Mr. Bryan argued strongly for the popular election of United States senators, and declared himself in favor of a direct primary. "The people will soon get together," said Mr. Bryan. "Eliminate the large special interests that have their representatives about every legislative body, and Democrats and Republicans and members of all parties could agree upon necessary legislation."

SECURITIES DROP OUT OF SIGHT WORTH $150,000

Treasurer of a New England Bank at New Britain, Conn., Has Also Disappeared.

New Britain, Conn., Feb. 13.—Negotiable securities to a large amount are missing from the vaults of the Savings bank of New Britain, of which institution the treasurer, William F. Walker, mysteriously dropped out of sight in New York on Sunday last. During the day Philip Corbin, president of the bank, stated that the bank auditors had been unable to locate securities of a value of $150,000, but did not find any other irregularities in the accounts or cash of the bank. The situation, according to Mr. Corbin, suggested abstraction of the securities from the vaults. Not an inkling of Walker's whereabouts has been obtained. Walker has been treasurer of the funds of the Connecticut State Baptist convention for years, having about $75,000. There has been a lively run on the bank, which has deposits of $6,000,000.

NEW TREATY WITH SANTO DOMINGO

Washington, Feb. 13.—The president sent to the senate the new treaty with the republic of Santo Domingo, relative to the revenues of that country. The new agreement is confined entirely to the matter of the collection of revenues. It sets forth in the preamble the fact that Santo Domingo had entered on an agreement with her creditors, which is made contingent on the fact that this country shall collect the money, and it is then agreed that the president of the United States shall appoint a representative of the government as receiver general, to take charge of all the funds collected and provide means for their collection.

USURPATION BY FEDERAL POWER OF STATE RIGHTS

Is Decried by Representative McCall of Mass., Addressing New York Republican Club.

New York, Feb. 13.—Argument against usurpation by the national government of the powers reserved to the states by the constitution was made by Representative McCall of Massachusetts in an address before the Republican club of this city. Mr. McCall declares the time is ripe for a warning against the tendency to overthrow the balance of the constitution and to regulate each and all of us from Washington. That there is such a tendency, he held, is too palpable to be denied. He expressed the opinion that the states are ideally constituted to deal with the great mass of questions relating to personal government.

TRAIN AUDITORS PLACED ON B. & O. TO COLLECT FARES

THE CONDUCTOR HEREAFTER WILL DEVOTE HIS ENTIRE TIME TO THE TRAIN.

A Reform Instituted Which it is Thought will Minimize Danger of Accident.

The B. & O. has installed train auditors on all of its lines running into Newark.

The train auditor is a new "institution" in this part of the country. Up to now no other railroad in this section has tried to use them. A train auditor does the work formerly done by the conductor. He collects the tickets and cash fares and makes out the reports. He does not replace the conductor, but the conductor becomes what the name implies, and looks after the running of the train and his train orders.

While no statement is forthcoming, it is thought in railroad circles that the change in train operation is due to the number of recent wrecks of a serious nature. The new move will make the conductor responsible only for the conduct of his train and will give him no excuse for not giving his entire time and thought to that subject.

Invents New Tie.

The railroad companies of this country are among the greatest consumers of our rapidly diminishing forests, millions and millions of feet of timber being worked up into railroad ties every year. The question that has been bothering the railroad companies for some time is what they are going to do for ties in the future. The explanation has been solved if Mr. Henry M. Martin, a well known painter of this city has anything to say in the matter. He has invented a new railroad tie that cannot but give satisfaction, and will apply for a patent at once. Experts who have examined it pronounce it one of the best things ever invented.

BRABKMAN LOSES A LEG.

Columbus, O., Feb. 13.—Wm. Ferguson a Pennsylvania railroad brakeman, was brought to Columbus and taken to the Protestant hospital, where his right leg was amputated. While switching cars at Coshocton he fell between two cars. In order that he might be given proper medical attention, a special train was at once made up to bring him to Columbus. He was taken to the hospital in the general ambulance. He is 23 years old and his home is in Coshocton.

HOW ABOUT THE REVOLUTION PLAY?

(By Paul Armstrong.)
New York, Feb. 13.—While I think it doubtful if Herr Conrad will thank me for any suggestion as to the policy of his new theater—called the National in our language, I do not know the German for it—I cannot restrain advice.

Since Herr Conrad's theater is to be built in America why not open it with a real American play of the Revolution?

Of course the close relationship existing between Germany and Great Britain makes it rather difficult, because the English never have liked to hear that story. Herr Conrad would likely get himself very much disliked by the Kaiser, King Edwards and some few Anglomaniacs on this side, but still it's an idea.

PAUL ARMSTRONG.

It does seem a crying shame that so dramatic and thrilling a bit of history should be allowed to go to waste for want of a stage. In that story of the Revolution there is more undiluted heroism, sacrifice, pathos and joy than in all the plays ever written by Americans. Something clutches a native born by the throat when he thinks of Valley Forge, and has blood turns black with rage when the murders of unarmed men and the slaughter of women rush across his mind. And there is wild joy of victory, victory full and complete.
